
A Sermon

preached ỹ fourth Sũdaye in Lente be=fore the Kynges Ma=iestie. and his hono=rable Counsell, by Thomas Leauer.

Anno Domini. M.cccc.l.

..*

*

Class. 5

BIBLIOTHECA · BCG

O God be mercyfull vnto vs: for the tyme is euen nowe comynge, when as God muste needes eyther of hys mercy here in Englande, wozcke suche a wonderfull miracle vnto our confozte, as farre passeth mans expectacion: oz els of his righteousnes take such vengeauuce of this land to theyample of all other landes, as shal be to our vtter destruccion.

Ye know, that immediatlie after the pzeachynge of Noe, came the great flud that dzouned ỹ wozlde. After the warnynge of Loth, came fyze, & brimstone vpon the Sodomites and Gomozrians. When Moises had declared gods threatnynges in Egipt, kinge Pharao and hys people were plaged vpon the lãd, and dzouned in the red sea. Such plages came euer where gods worde truly preached, is not beleued, receaued, and kolowed. But at is the preaching of Jonas, the Niniuites repented wonderfully. When the boke of the lawe was reade vnto Josias the kynge, he, with all his people spedely repentynge, found exceadyng mercy blessynge and grace: as lykewyse all other shalbe sure to find, which heare the word of God and kepe it.

For when Christ and his Apostles had preached the gospell vnto the Jewes, those that beleued were delyuered frome the curse of the law, vnto the blessing of grace out of worldly myserye, to be inheritours of the heuenly kingdome: and those that did not beleue, were cast from God, oppressed of men, ouercome, spoyled, murthered, and destroyed of theyr enemies.

Wherfore Englande, whyche at this presente tyme, by reason of the

the worde of god ſet fourth, reade, preached, and communed, dothe in euery place heare ỹ coũcel of Noe, the warning of Loth, the lawe of Moiſes, the threatnynges of ỹ pro-phetes, and the grace of the goſ-pel, as it was declared and taught by Chriſt and his Apoſtles: This Englande muſte nedes, either by beleuynge of theſe thinges, obteine of god wonderful grace of amend-mente, or els by neglectinge them, prouoke the vengeance of god, as a dewe plage and punyſhment.

Take heede therfore England, for if thou by vnbeleke, let and ſtop God from worckynge of miracles to thy comforte, then ſurely doeſt thou prouoke god to powre down vengeaunce vpon the, to thy vtter diſtruccyon: But if thou doo re-garde, receiue, and beleue goddes worde, he wyll worke wonderfull miracles to thy comforte, wealthe, and prosperitie. Yea, let euery man, of what estate or degree soeuer he be, grope hys owne consciences, for if he dooe not there fele that the worde of God dothe take place to moue him to repentaunce and amendment of lyfe, then shall he be sure soone to haue experience, that the vengeaunce of god, by a shameful shorte ende of hys wretched lyfe, wyl bryng hym vnto an euerlastinge dampnable deathe. For all those that wyll not creepe vnder the merciful wings of god, as the chikinnes of Chryst, shal be caught and deuoured of puttocks, haukes, and kytes, as a praye for the deuyll. The wynges of god be stretched abrode here in Englande, by the kynges gracious maiestie, and his honourable counsell, of mighty power, wyth ready wyl, to shadowe, defende, and saue all those that wyth reuerent loue, come hum-humbly creping vnder theyr ordynaũce, rule, & gouernãce, which is ỹ power, ỹ wings & the order of god.

The filthye gredy puttockes, Jnuectyues to Engld. wylde haukes, and rauenyng kyt-tes, be superstitious papistes, car-nall gospellers, and sedicious re-belles, whych as ye haue seene by late experience, haue most cruelly caught, spoyled, and deuoured the lambes, the chekynnes, the chyldren of God redemed and boughte with Christes bloude. Wherefore as Christ in his owne person dyd once lamente and bewayle Jerusalem, so doeth he nowe many tymes in the persons of hys propheticall preachers, lament & bewayl Englande, saying: O Englande, howe ofte wold I haue gathered thy chyldren, as a hen gathereth her chikens vnder her wynges, and thou woldest not? Euen wyth the same affection that the shepeherde crieth

cryeth, seynge the wolfe leeryng towardes the shepe, & with the same affeccion that the hen clocketh and calleth, seyeng the kyte houeryng ouer her chekyns: wyth the same affeccion it behoueth the ministres and preacher of god, seeynge intollerable vengeaunce hangynge ouer Englande, to crye, to cal, and to geue warnyng vnto the people saying as it is writē in ỹ first of Esay: If ye willingly wil heare & obey, ye shal eate the good confortable frutes of ỹ earth: but if ye wil not, & prouoke me vnto anger, the swoꝛd shal deuour you. Quia os Domini locutum est. Foꝛ it is ỹ mouth of ỹ loꝛd that hath spoken.

Now your reuerende maiesty, most gracyous kyng, and you honourable, wyse godly counsellers, you are the chiefe shepeherds, you are the most reuerende fathers in Chryste, hauynge the wynges of powr and authoryty, to shadow, saue, and kepe these lambs of god, these chekens of Christe, and these chyldr̃ of the heauenly father, redemed wyth Chrystes bloude, and cõmitted vnto your handes, to be saued, kepte, and prouyded for.

God be prayed, wyth thankeful obedience, and louynge reuerence dewe to your gracious maiestye & honourable counsell, whiche haue surely, wysely prouyded for, dyligently kepte, and charitably saued thys realme, by dryuing awaye the wyly foxe of papisticall superstycion, and by castynge oute the vncleane spirit of ignorauñce, to gods glorye, your honor, & oure comforte.

But alas most gracious kyng and godly gouernors, for the tender mercyes of god, in oure Sauiour Jesu Christ, take good and diligent heed when ye be chasyng the wyly foxe of papisticall superstici on fiction, that the gredye wolfe of couetous ambicion, doo not creepe in at your backes: For surely he wyl do more harme in a weke, then the fore did in a yere.

Take hede ẏ the vncleane spirit of ignorãce, returning with. vii. other worse then hym selfe. find no place vnwarded, wher he may crepe in again. For if he returning wt his fellowes, enter in agayne, then wyl he make the ende of thys generacion to be worse then the beginninge.
Then shall you leese the rewarde of your former dylygence, and be damned for your later negligence.
Then shal the welspring of mercy which of long tyme hath watered this Realm with the grace of god, be closed vp, and the bludy flouds of vengeance gushing out frõ the wrath & indignacion of God, ouerflow al togither. Thẽ wil not god by workinge of miracles declare mercy

mercy, but by takinge of vengaũce execute rightuousnes.

But God beyng as mercyfull yet, as euer he was, if you contynewe as faythful, wise, and dylygente as ye haue bene, to handle the wolfe, as you haue done the fore, to keepe out the deuyll, as to cast out the deuyll: then shall the people of this lãde keede in quyetnes, wout feare of cuyl: then shall you continuyng to thende, be sure of an hunderdfold reward in thys lyfe, and afterwardes euerlasting lyfe, ioye and glorye. Then shall God doo wonderfull myracles in England, to declare howe mercye shall triumphe ouer rightousnes.

And that we maye all dyspose ourselues the more conuenientlye for god to worke suche a miracle amonge vs, wee haue appoynted for the gospel of this day, wrytten in the. vi. of Jhon, a wonderfull

miracle

miracle of. v .thousande men, fed and satisfied wyth. v .loaues and ii.fyshes, wher as euery man maye & ought to learne hys owne dutye, whiche shall cleare appeare too a king in Christ, to head gouerners vnder the kynge, in the Apostles beyng most neare about Christ, & to all other men, in that multitude of the people, whyche folowynge Christ, were obedient to syt downe at the cõmaundemẽt of his Disciples, not knowing, nor enquiring why they were so commaunded.

And as suerly as this wonderful miracle wãs done to ỹ great cõfort of thẽ in Christs time: so truly is it left in writyng for to learne vs by pacience & cõforte of ỹ Scriptures, to haue good hope at thys tyme. And as Christ hauing alwaies special respect vnto his audiẽce, dyd teach the fishers by talking of nettes, preachyng vnto the Jewes by diuers

diuers parables, & called the gentyles by the eloquence of Paule: so I, in handlyng of this miracle, hauing respecte vnto thys audyence, wyl aply the wonderful great charitable prouision of Chryste, vnto the kynges Maieste: the fayethful diligence of the Apostles, vnto the nobilitie: and the dewe obedyence and hertye thankefulnes of the multitude, vnto all other of the communaltye. Not doubtynge but that charitable prouision of liberall benefytes, wyll be a thynge most pleasaunt and honorable for the kynges gracious Maieste: and faithful diligence in disposing great benefyts most cõueniẽt, & cõmẽdable for al that be in high authority: & finally, humble obediẽce & vnfained thãkfulnes to be most necessary, requisite, & loked for, at thys tyme, in all inferiours & commune sort of people in Englande.

Marke

Marke a litle after the begyn-ning of the sixt Chap. of John, and ye shal heare, when as much people commynge vnto Jesus haupnge nothynge to eate, what Jesus did.
I wyl passe the discription of the wildernes with ỹ causes & the manner of the peoples going togither, & begin at ỹ which Chryst dyd, whē they wer comming towardes hym.

JEsus lifting vp his eyes, and seeynge muche people come vnto hym, sayde vnto Philyp: From whence shall wee bye bread, that these may eat. Thus he sayed tempting hym: for he hym self knew what he would do.
Philippe answered vnto hym: Two hundreth penye worth of bread wyll not be sufficiēt vnto these so that euery one myght take a lytell. One of hys disciples Andrew, Simon Peters brother, sayth vnto hym: There is one boye here, which hath .v. barely loaues & .ii. fyshes, but what ar those amongest so many? Jesus sayd, Make the men to sit doun. Ther was muche grasse in the place: The menne therfore sat down about the nūber of .v. thousands Jesus toke the bread, and after thanckes geuynge, did diuide it vnto his disciples, and the discyples

to

to them that were sette: And lykewyse of the fyshes, so muche as they woulde. And when they were filled, he sayed vnto hys disciples: Gather vp the broken meates remayning, that nothynge be lost. They gathered therfore, and filled .xii. baskets ful of those meats which remained, after that they hadde eaten. The men therfore seeynge what a sygne Jesus hadde done, sayde that this is truly the Prophet whych cummeth vnto the world.

O Mercyfull Lorde, what a greke is it to se those which a man loueth hartely, with suche diseases infected, that euerye thinge ministred by the Phisicion to do them good, by theyr own vnquietnes & misusinge of the same doth encrease theyr greuous daungerous sicknes? For these people, hauing great occasion of comfort, by reason yt in this place, throughe the true preaching of gods worde, al sinne is playnly and frely rebuked, and those thinges especiallye whiche dooe appertayne vnto magystrates, wherby anye man of indifferent iudgemente, maye thinke that these magistrates beinge presente, and willingelye heatynge, be purposed to amende: These people I say, that thus haue a greate occasion of comforte offered vnto them, by theyr owne mistakinge of it, dooe tourne all to theyr further gryefe and daunger . For they speake vnreuerently, and vntruly slaunder the magistrates, not only with the faultes that bee here named, but also with rebukynge, imprisoninge, and forbiddinge of the Preachers. And when as by the same mouth of the true preacher, theyr venemous tounges be rebuked, thē they spare not to say, that the Preacher hath learned his lesson in Jacke an apes court: doing as much as lyeth in them, to make other men, neither to reuerence the magistrates, nor beleue the Preacher. What they them selfes mean thereby, peraduenture by reason of blyndenesse, they wot not. But we knowinge the craft of the deuill, as Paul writeth. ii. Cor. ii. perceiue that he would haue nothing in this place layed to the Rulers charge: Not fearynge howe muche be spoken to those of the people, whiche be past any amendment by wordes: But al ỳ the deuil feareth, is lest that the rulers be put in remembraunce of the greate daunger that thei be in, for suffring to great enormities vnpunished amongest the people.

I therfore trusting to do most good in that whiche the deuyll laboureth the most to hinder, wyll laye great and many faultes vnto them that haue most power, & authorytye. For sure I am, that rulers ordeyned of God to see the ignoraunte instructed, and the cuyll punyshed, be in greate daunger of Gods vengeaunce, for the greate and manifold enormytyes whiche do grow and spryng of ignorance for lacke of knowledge, & of dissolutenes for lacke of due correccion.

And you people be ye sure that the more theyr daunger is, for lack of prouision and punishmente for other mens faultes, the greater is the damnacion of them that cõmit and do these faultes.

Nowe I trustinge to God, and not fearinge the deuyll, wyll proceade to declare and applye thys parte of scripture vnto thys Audyence, so that for no man I wyll cloke or flatter any vyce.

Jesus lyftinge vp hys eyes, and seinge muche people cummynge vnto hym. &c.

Here note two thynges: in the people note cõminge vnto Chryst, and in Chryst, note charitable prouision for the people. For in thys people dothe Chryst declare by example, & proue in experyence hys doctryne to be true, whiche he had afore taught, sayinge: Fyrste seeke for the kyngdome of God and the ryghtuousnes thereof, and al these other, meaninge necessaryes, shall be ministred vnto you. For here they folowinge Chryst, to seke the kyngdome of God, had not onlye

this

this kingdome of God, this bread of lyfe, thys worde of saluacion preached vnto theim, but also all theyr diseases healed, & their hungry bellies with good meates plētifully filled.

Yea the plentye of these people hauinge inoughe euen so muche as they woulde, was farre more then the plentie of crafty Lawers, disceitful Merchauntes, couetous greedygutte s, & ambicious pyllers, whiche canne neuer haue inough: but alwayes continewe in vnsaciable hunger, and nede of couetousnes. As the. xiiii. Psal. declareth: Diuites eguerunt: The riche haue felt nede & hunger: but they whiche seke ỹ lord lacke no goodes

He that seeketh to be ryche, be he neuer so poore a saue, or so myghtye a Lorde, he falleth into dyuers temptacions and snares of the deuyll: but they that seeke the

Lorde

Lorde, shall lacke no goodnes.
Seeke for to be rich, & thou shalt fynd sorow, mysery, and mischiefe: Seeke for to be godlye, and thou shalt fynd comfort, welth, and pros-peritie, with al maner of felicity.
If thou wilt be godly, thou must folowe Chryst: thou must not fo-low the steppes of hys fete, which be taken vp into heauen out of thy syghte, but thou oughtest to folow the doctryne of hys worde, which is here left vpon earthe, to guyde the steppes of thy lyfe, in the way of peace. And whyther wyll Goddes word gyde the in the tyme of thy trouble and necessytye?
Surely vnto the Lorde, whych saith: Propter miseriam inopum. &c. For the miseryes sakes of the comfortlesse, and syghynges of the poore, now wyl I ryse, sayeth the Lorde.
O Lorde, seeynge thou haste manye people in Inglande, that as

as yet be in mysteryes without con-fort, and in pouertye, and lacke helpe, how dooest thou aryse vnto them? Unto this the Lorde aun-swereth, in the.xxxiiii.of Ezechiel: Suscitabo super eos pastorem unum. &c.
I wyll set vp ouer theym one pastor, euen my seruaunte Dauyd, he shall feede theym, and he shall be theyr pastor, and I the Lord wyll be theyr God. Thys prophecye was wrytten longe after Dauids tyme. Wherefore by Dauid here named, is sygnyfyed and meante suche a Kynge as shalbe as fayth-full and diligent to kepe, feede, and cherysh hys subiectes within hys owne Realme, as was Dauid to his people wythin Israell. Wee hope, truste and beleue, that oure gracious Kyng, indued wyth the faythfull diligence of Dauid, is ordeyned of God, to gouerne, cherish and feede vs the people of thys his realme. Wherefore accordinge to the example of Chryst Jesu, most Christē and Gracious kynge, for the reuerence of God, which hath set you vpon the hygh hyll of honor and authorytye, lyfte vp your gracious eyes of charytable pitie, and behold muche people throughoute all Englande, commynge to seke relefe, ease and comforte, sente frome God vnto them, by your excellente Maiestye. For although there hathe bene to much mercy shewed vpon the generacion of vypers, the vngracious rebelles: Yet is there manye poore people, whiche lyke symple sheepe, shorne to the bare skynne, haue as yet lytle prouision & great neede. Euen as. v. thousandes in wildernes folowed Christ and his Apostles, so manye thousandes in Englande, past all other hope and refuge, folowe your gracious ma-iestye

lestye and honourable Counsel. For theyr parsons, whiche should lyke shepheardes feede them, doo lyke theues, robbe, murther and spoyle them. And theyr landlozdes which shuld defend them, be moste heauye maisters vnto them: Yea, all maner of officers doo not theyr duties to kepe the people in good ozder, but rather take such fees as maketh the people berraye pooze. Who so hathe eyes, and wyll see, may easely perceiue that those personages, which be most in number and greateste in value throughout al Englande, be no shepherds houses to laye vp fodder to feede the pooze shepe of the paryth, but theeuysh dennes, to conuey awaye great spoyle from all the rych men of the paryth. I say ther is no person there, to releue the pooze & nedy with natural sustinaūce in kepynge of house, and to fede all in-generaliye

generally with the heauenly foode of goddes worde by preachinge: But there is a persons deputy or fermer, which hauing neither habilitye, power, nor authoritye to doo the persons dutye in feedyng and teachinge the parish, is able, sufficient, and stout inough to chalenge and take for hys maysters dutye the tenth parte of al the paryshe. Likewise other officers take many fees, and do few dutyes: And especiallye landlordes take exceadynge fynes and rentes of theyr tenauntes, and doo no good vnto theyr tenauntes.

Now my Lordes, bothe of the laitie and of the clergy, in the name of god, I aduertyse you to take heede: for when the Lorde of all Lordes shal se his flocke scattred, spylte and loste, if he folowe the trace of the bloude, it wyll leade him euen streyght waye vnto thys courte

court, and vnto your houses, where as these great theues which murther, spoyl, and destroy the flockes of Chryst, be receyued, kept, and mainteined.

For you maintain your chaplens to take Pluralities, & youre other seruaunts mo offices then they can or wyl discharge.

Pluralities

Fye for shame and shame, either gyue your seruauntes wages, or els let them go and serue those which do gyue them wages. For now your chaplaynes, your seruaunts, & you your selues haue the persons, the shepherds, & the offycers wages, & nether you nor they, nor other doth ỹ persons, the shepherds or the officers duty, excepte peraduẽture ye imagin that ther is a patiche preest, curate, which doth the persons duti. But although ye do so imagin, yet the people do feel and perceiue that he doeth meane

no no other thing but pay your duty, pay your dutye. Yes forsouth he ministreth Gods sacramentes, he sayeth hys seruice, and he readeth the homilies, as youfyne, flatring, courtiers, which speake by imagination, tearme it: But the rude lobbes of the countrye, whiche be to symple to paynte a lye, speake foule and truly as thei finde it, and saye. He ministeth Goddes sacramentes, he slubbers by his seruice and he can not reade the humbles. Yet is there some that canne reade very well, but how many of those be not either superstitious pappystes, or els carnall gospellers, whiche by theyr euyll example of lyuyng, and worse doctrine, do farre more harme then they do good by theyr fayre reading & saying of seruice. But put the case, as it maye be, that there be at a benefyce in some place at somtime, some good curate

curate, all those summes wyll make but a fewe in number, and yet ye see many persons in manye places absente from theyr benifices, whiche if they be seldome absente, may be good, but if they be contynually or for the most part absent, then can they be neither good, honest nor godly. For if theyr dutye be vndone, then can no man excuse them: if it be done, then is it by other and not by them: and then whye dooe they lyue of other mennes laboures? He that preacheth the gospell, shoulde lyue vpon the Gospell, as God hathe ordeyned: As for those, Qui mollibus uestiuntur, in domibus Regum, whyche goo gaye in Kynges houses, and either mosell the labouringe ore, or els spoyl the poore parish in the country, be of the deuyls ordynaunce. As there is in all offices some putte in by Chryste, some by the deuyll: so is there there in personages, some sente from Christ as shepherdes to fede, & some from the deuyll, as theues to deuoure. Yea amongest all kyndes of offycers, some be true Prophetes and sheppeheardes in dede, and some haue shepe skynnes, and be rauentnge wolues in dede. The one taketh paynes in doyng of hys dutye, and the other seketh gaynes in prokellyng of hys duty. Take heede of those, for they ar erraunt theeues.

Alas, if all those whiche take the names and prokellyons of offycers, for desyre of luker and honor, and do not execute the dutyes belongynge to theyr offyces wyth painful diligence, be errant theues as they be in deede, then is ther many a strong erraunt theefe amongst thē ỹ be called honest, worshipful, and honorable men.

For they haue the names, the au-authoꝛytyes & vauntages of thoſe offyces gyuen & payed vnto them, the dutyes of the whyche be verye ſlenderly oꝛ nothyng at al executed amongeſt the people.

If I were in anye other place in al England, I could and wold vſe another trade of preachynge afoꝛe another audience: but beinge called of God by your appoyntement, vnto this place at this tyme, my conſcience doth compell me to vſe this trade and no other, afoꝛe this ſolenme audience. Wherfoꝛe with dreede and feare of God, with charitable pyty of the people, with moſte reuerend loue and homage vnto your honoꝛs, I muſte needes cry wyth the Prophete Eſaye:

Principes Sodome, populus Gomorre: Heare the woꝛde of the Loꝛde ye Pꝛynces of Sodome, ye people of Gomoꝛra: Quo mihi multitudo victimarum uestrarum. What care I foꝛ the the great number of your sacrifyces, Dicit Dominus, sayth the Lord: rebukyng all the sacrifices, Ceremonyes, and feastes of the Jewes which he him selfe had commaunded to be obserued and kept: by the which thyng lest in wrytyng he doth teach and commaund me how to speake of your well doyng here in England. Heare therfore ye Prynces of Sodome, and ye people of Gomor, thus sayth the Lord: What pleasure haue I, yea what care I for all your Englysh Bibles, Homelies, & all your other bookes: set forth no more godly seruice to honor me wyth: I hate them al wyth my herte, they are greuous vnto me, I am wery of them: Yea, it is a great payne for me to suffer them. Why, O Lord these be good, these be godly, and these be necessarye thynges.

Truthe it is, the faulte is not in the the thinges that be set forth, but in you ỹ haue set them furthe. Manus enim uestre plene sunt sanguine: For your handes are ful of bloud.

Your handes, your seruyce and your houses be full of persons lyuynges preachers liuinges, and officers liuynges. And by you, the person hath his dyspensacion, the preacher is put to silence, and the officer vnpunyshed, for neglectynge of hys dutye. And so thrꝛough the negligence of the rulers (good ꝛuler, which is ỹ pale of the parke of this cõmunewelth defaced) the dere therof most dearly bought wyth Chꝛystes bloude, haue strayed oute of theire owne feedynge, to dystroye the cozne of all mens liuinges: Where as very necessytye hath compelled you with such force to dꝛiue thẽ backe, as must needes distroye manye of those dere. Those people I mean, whych you haue cherysshed & kept & as yet doo loue and pitie aboue al other iewels, commodities and pleasures. Alas, these that take the liuinges, and doo not the duties of Persons, Preachers, land lordes, Bailyes, and of other officers: These flatterers, these wol-fes in lãbes skinnes, these deuils in mens vysers, haue caused you to be thought and taken as cruell oppressers of those people, whose furyous wylde rage ye dyd sup-presse and keepe vnder, of verye charitable pitie towardes them, & all other, whych with that rebellious rage, should haue be al togither distroied, if the help of your power and authoritye hadde bene any longer differred.

Surely, vnyl that these pyol-lers for themselues, these children of the dyuell, these sowers of sedicion be taken out of the way, either ther by reformacion, or by distruc tion, your charitable pity and pro uision for the people, and theyr re-uerend loue & obedience towardes you, shall neuer be sene, felte, and knowen. Nowe, as Helye was guiltye of the whordome, extorcion, and abhominacion of his sonnes, so are youre hertes ful of crueltye, and youre handes full of bloude, not so muche by doyng, as by suf-ferynge all these euyls. Wherfore Lauamini, mundi estote: Wash, & make your selues cleane, with the teares of repentaunce. Auferte malum cogitacionem uestrarum ab oculis meis: Away with the euyll of your thoughtes from afore myne eyes. Open youre heartes, that the swerde of Gods word maye come to wipe awaye couetousnes, whyche is the roote of all euyll, planted in youre hertes. For yf that roote contyn-neuether, than cā no good springe from you: but euen the moſt pure and holeſome worde of God ſette forth by you continuinge in couetouſnes, wyll be abhominable in the ſyghte of God, offenſyue vnto the people, & damnable vnto you your ſelues. Wherefore, Quieſcite agere peruerſe: Ceaſſe to peruerte, manye thynges from euyll vnto worſe. Diſcite benefacere: Learne to do wel, in conformynge al thinges that be a mille, vnto a good order. Quærite iudicium: Seeke for ryghteous iudgement which is almoſt banyſhed out of Englande. Alas what a iudgemente is thys, a ſuperſticious papiſte, whyche hath made the faulte ſhall haue a penſion out of a Chauntrye, ſo longe as he lyueth, and a pooze prieſt, whych hath greate nede and done no faulte ſhall loſe and forfayte many Chauntries bitterly for euer Subuenite oppreſſo: Helpe the oppreſſed led people that be loaden with he-uye burdeyns of payinge wages to manye offyces, and kaynte for lacke of releike, & dewe seruyce of the offycer. Iudicate pupillo: Judge so to the fatherlesse chyldzens be-hoke, that wardshyp mai be a good prouision for fatherles chyldzen, and not an vncharitable spoyle of yong mens lands. Defendite uiduam: Shielde the widow from al mens iniurpes, and compell them not to marp your vnthrifty seruauntes.

Thus hath God by Esaye in hys tyme, and by me at thys tyme described Rulers Faultes, wyth a waye how to a mend them. Therfore, Principes Anglie: Ye heade Rulers and gouernors of England, fyrste see, acknowledge, amende your owne faultes: and then, per-usynge all vnder-offyceers, consy-der and note how few shepheards and offyces doo keede and kepe.

by doynge dutyes, and how many theeues and wolfes do robbe and spoyle the flockes, by takyng fees here in Englande: And then shall ye perceaue that there must nedes be manye sheepe, that wyth theyr hertes, myndes, and expectacion, do folowe the kynges Maiestye, and you of hys honorable counsel so farre past the houses and cities of their owne prouysion, that if they haue not spedy relefe at your handes, manye of theim is lyke to faynte and decaye by the way.

Therfore thys considered and knowen, as Christ lyftinge vp his eyes dyd teach you to see and consyder the people: so learne by that whiche foloweth in Christes doo-ynge, what shalbe your dutye after that ye se and knowe the multitude, the state and condicion of the people.

And he said vnto Philip

lyp: From whence shall we bye breade, that these maye eate? But thys he sayde to proue hym: for he hym selfe knewe what he would do.

Christ said to Philip as euerye Christē kyng ought to say to his Counsell: From whence shall we that be gouernors, kepers and feders, bye & prouyde with out own costes, labor, and diligence, bread, foode and necessaryes, that these may eate and be relieued, which be our subiects in obedience, brethrē in Christ, and felow heyres of the heauenly kyngdome.

Pharao wyth hys Counsell in Egypte, consulted howe to bryng the welthy people vnto misery: so hat he is a very Pharonicall tyrāt, whych laboureth by oppressiō

to

to thrust down the welthy people: And he is a faithful christen king that humbleth hym self by diligẽce to relieue, conforte, and set vp the afflycted people. For the one, by worldly policy, would haue much honor, and the other of godly charitie wil do much good. Christ also said this, to proue and trie Philip, knowyng hym self what shuld be done. So that here, kynges and great men may learne to trye, and proue the honestie, wit, and fi-delitie of theyr Coũsellers, in such matters as they them selues be so perfect that they can diserne wyth what discretion and mynd the cou-seller doth answere.

Philip aũswered, that two hũdreth peny worth of breade wyll not serue vnto these, so that euery one myghte take a lyttell

In the which answere, as concernynge his witte, he declareth it to be to slender to prouide for so great a matter in so short tyme. And hys mynde semed to be suche as would not haue Christ to trouble hym selfe wyth so great cares but rather as the other Euangelistes do declare, to sende the people away, and let them prouid for them selfes. The same minde and affeccion was in Peter, after that Christ hadde tolde hys Disciples howe that we must go to Jerusalem to suffer sore paines and miserable death. For then Peter tooke hym a syde and sayde: Mayster fauour your selfe, doo not enter in to such daunger and sorowes. And it is not vnlyke, but if youre Magestye; wyth youre Counsell speake vnto youre nobles for prouision now to be made for the people: ye shall synde some that bee

Phi-

Philippians and Peters, whyche by lettynge afore youre eyes the hardnes of the matter, the tenderness of your yeares, and the wonderfull charges that should be requisite, wyl moue and counsel you to quyet youre selfe, to take youre ease, yea to take your pastime, in haukyng, huntyng or gamnyng. Unto whom your Magestie may answer, as Christ dyd vnto Peter: Auoyde fro me Sathan, thou hyndrest me by thy carnall temptacion, to doo that thyng whyche God hath moued me vnto by hys gracious inspiracion. Thou hast no tast nor sauour howe delicious God is vnto a pure conscience, in Godly exercise of good workes. But al that thou regardest & feelest is voluptuous pleasure in worldly vanities. And therefore ỹ doest not perceiue, how ỹ they which be indued with a special grace of god may may fynd moze pleasure & pastime in godly gouernaūce, to kepe togi ther & saue simple mē, then in hau king and huntynge, to chase and kyll wylde beasties. Yea, a godly kyng shall finde moze pleasure in castinge lots for Jonas, to trye out offenders, whiche trouble the ship of his commune wealth, then in casting dice at hasarde, to alow & maintaine by his example, such thynges as should not be suffered in a commune wealth. Yea surely, a good kyng shal take farre moze delyte in edifiynge wyth conforte and deckynge wyth good ozder the Congregacion of hys people, the Churche and house of God, the heauenly Citye of Jerusalem, then in buildinge suche houses as seeme gaye and gozgeous, and be in deede but vyle earthe, stones, tymber and claye. Suche lyke aunswer ought your Magestye, & all noble men to make, if ye fynde any of your Counsellers more carnal than spirituall, more worldlye then godly. Or els toutne awaye your eares from such Philipians, & heare other, as Christ did.

Then saide vnto him one of his Disciples, Andrew Simon Peters brother, Ther is a boye here that hath fyue barely loaues and two fyshes, but what auaile those amõge so manye?

Note here that this boye was the Apostles page, & these loues and fishes were their vittayles. For as appeareth in Marke, whe they had made search howe manye loaues they them selues had, thys answere was made, ỹ they had .v. loues & .ii. fishes: but what be they amõgest so many? As who should say say: although these be al ỹ euer we haue & seme moze mete to be kept amongest a few, thē to be giuen to many, yet foz because thei ỹ becum whyche beynge many haue moze nede then we: therefoze at we wil linge to giue thē to be disposed, & wish ỹ they were of moze value to do moze good amōgest ỹ people.

Thesemen cared moze foz the Commune people, then they dyd foz them selues, and therfoze were very mete to be Counsellers, and neare about a great kyng.

Here we perceyue what symple Phylippe, and good Andzewe thinke, but here is nothyng declared of couetous Judas counsell. No, foz Christ beynge fully purposed to doo a good deede doeth neither aske, noz heare anye counsell of couetous Judas: teachyng all them whych intende any goodnes, neuer to aske noz admit anye counsel of those whom they know to be couetous. For truely the couetous mans councel, although it seme neuer so good and honest, yet is it in dede nought and deuilish. For what could seme better counsel then ỳ a litle ointmẽt, the swete smel of the whyche continued but a whyle among a few, should haue ben sould for thre hundreth pence, the greate price of the whyche bestowed amongeste manye poore, should haue done them good for a great season.

The Euangelyst doeth shewe howe that Judas dyd gyue thys counsell, not for that he had anye care of the poore, but by cause he was a theefe, and bare the baggee. Judas pretence was wonders godlye, to sell the oyntmente for a great summe of monye, to relieue the poore wyth, but hys purpose was deuelyshe, to get the mony in

hys

hys bagges, and kepe it to hym selfe. And those in England why- che dyd pretende, that besides the abolishinge of superstition, wyth the landes of Abbeys, Coliges and Chauntries, the king should be enryched, learnynge mayntay- ned, pouertye relieued, and the cō- mune wealthe eased, and by thys pretence purposely haue enriched theym selues, settynge abrode in- cloysterd papistes, to get their li- uinges by giuing them pencions, yea, and thrustynge them into be- nefices to poyson the whole com- mune welth for the rilignacion of those pencions: & so craftly cōuey- ing much frō the king, frō lerning from pouertye, & from al the com- mune wealth, vnto their own pri- uate vauntage: These menues counsell semed better then Judas counsell was: and their couetous- nes, by their owne deedes appeareth reth no lesse then Judas couetousnesse dyd. Well, beware, for if ye play Judas part on styll, & make no restitucion, vntil ye go to han-gyng, ye are lyke to fynde desperacio at the end of your life, because ye wold not by restitucion amend your life. Ye noble me, & especially you of the kings coũsel, for the re-uerence of God, pitie of the cõmen wealth, and safegarde of your selfes, awaye wyth these Judasses, let them go hange them selues: excepte peraduenture ye thynche it fytte and necessary, that you fyrst hang them afore thei betray you.

For vndoutedly, he that hath the couetousnes of Judas in his hert he wyll playe all the other partes of Judas, if he euer haue suche opportunitie as Judas had.
I way wyth Judas, and learne at Andrew, to saye vnto thys kynge and his councel intendynge to re-leiue lieue the multitude of hys people here in Englande, learne ye noble men to saye: Here is a boye: Here be seruauntes and retayners of oures whyche haue fyue loaues and two fyshes, manye benefices, some prebendes, wyth dyuers offyces: yea, and some of vs our selues haue mo offyces then we can discharge. Pleaseth it your maiestie to take these into your hands, which haue bene kept for vs, that they now in thys great nede, maye be better disposed amongest youre people. Quid hec inter tantos? These be verye small thynges towardes the amendemẽt of so many lackes in so great a multitude. Howbeit these wyl serue, so that there maye be mo good Persons, good preachers, and good officers placed abrode in euery countrye, which in doing theyr offices, keping of houses, and preachyng of godswoorde may teach the ignorannte, relieue the poore, punyshe the fautye, and cherysshe the honest, and so repayre the pale of good order about thys comen welth. For the loue of God giue your seruauntes wages, and cause thē to restore these liuinges, whych coming of the sweate of the labourer, be in dede the relike of ỹ poore, the mayntenaunce of honestye, and the reward of vertue, yea the verye pale, wall, and bulwarkes of the commen wealth. The Apostles gaue all that they had of theyr owne, freely vnto other: stycke not you to restore that now whych ye haue of longe tyme vncharitably kept from other.

Heare what foloweth: whan these fishes & loaues were brought vnto Jesus, make (sayeth he) the people to sit downe. God alwayes bestoweth his benefites vpon them that sit doune in quietnes, & powreth reth furth hys vēgaūce vpō those that be vnpacient, vnquiet, & full of businesse. For as appeareth in Genesis, the people gathered together in the playne of Sanner, & made a greate vpzoze, buildyng a tower lyke rebels agaynst god, to get thē a name. Howe be it god destroied their hādywozke, cōfoūded theyr lāgage, & scatered thē abzod.

The Scribes & the Phariseys came vnquietly, temptyng Chzist, and required a sygne from heaue. Chzist rebuked them sharply, and shewed them no sygne, but called them a frowarde and aduoutrous generacion. So the people in England gathered together, they woulde make maisterys, and be notable felowes: yea, the towze of theyr presumpcion shuld be built vp vnto heauen, in dyspite of gentyll men and nobilitye: they haue partlye felte, and we haue syghte pitifully sene howe sore God was therwith offended. Nowe I heare saye there is as yet remainynge in Englād sūm stiffe necked Jewes, which come presumptuously temptyng God, and say: if these our rulers be sent of God, to take better order then other haue done, well then, let theym begynne betime to gyue vs a notable sygne & token, for els we wyll not beleue, truste, nor obey them.

Wel, I wyl tel you that thus whysper: Euen as Christe was Positus in resurreccionem et ruinam multorum in Israell: Set to restore and decaye manye in Jsraell: So be Christen rulers in euerye comune wealth, set and ordayned of God, to beate doune & kepe vnder these sturdye rebels, whych be so cuyll thē selues, that they cannot thinke that any man doeth intende to do them good, & to rayse vp, conforte

and

and cherish the simple patient peo ple, whyche be of a good truste to= wardes theyr rulers, knowynge that they theim selues haue deser= ued no euyll: or els if they haue done euyl, yet by repentaunce and amendemente, do not doute to ob= teyne mercye at theyr rulers han= des. So God hath ordeyned ru= lers to cherysshe ỹ, if thou be mek quyet and patiente, or els to pu= nysshe the, if thou be vnquyet, bus and stubborne. Learne at Paule.
Rom. xiii. If thou do wel, to trust well of thy rulers, and if thou doo euyll, not to be wythoute feare of theyr powers, for he beareth not the swerde wythout a cause. Take hede therefore ye rulers, for gods sake, and pitye of people, seynge that God hath geuen you a swerd to cut of rotten caukred members for the safegarde of the hole body, knowyng no cãker to be so daun= gerous as rebellion in a commen wealth: If ye fynde one person infected wyth that canker, awaye wyth him, for ỹ safegard of the body of that house. If one house be infected, away wyth it, for the safegarde of that toune. If the toune be infected, awaye wyth it, for the safegarde of the contrey. Yea, if a shyre or contrye be all poysoned, awaye wyth it, for the pitye, and safegarde of the hole bodye of the commen welth. So ye se, that the sharper that youre swerde is, and the sooner that ye strike rebellion, the more pyty shewe ye in cutting away the lesse, and saueynge the more part and porcion of the people, beynge all of one bodye, of one realme and common welth. Consider that Chryste wente from Jerusalem vnto wildernes, to drawe the Gentle people from amonge the stoborne scribes: and so Chry-sten sten rulers muste nowe nedes defer the tyme to drawe the people that be good and trust well, from amonge this frowarde generaction, whiche of presumption loke to haue order taken as they requyre, and appoynte the tyme, the place and the thynge. Wherfore, ye that be good quiet people, beware of theie busye felowes, and as thys multitude whiche oughte to be youre example, folowed Chryst in to the wyldernes, so folowe you Christen rulers, goddes officers, youre chiefe gouernors in Eng-lande. And as they dyd not mur-mure, sayinge: why shall we sitte downe here in the wyldernes, beyng an infinite number, where no meate is, seynge that in the cityes where was more meate, and lesse gatherynge of the people, we had neuer feaste gyuen of hym by hys Apostles:

So I saye, do not you grudge and saye: why shall we quyet oure selues nowe, trustynge to relefe, where wee see nothynge, and were nothynge at al releued when there was great plentye of landes, and goodes of Abbeys, Colegis, and Chaunteries? Do not murmour so vngodlye, but see that there be no faulte in you, and ye shal fynd no lacke in GOD. Surelye, excepte ye do sytte downe quietly, ye shall soner prouoke goddes vengeaunce to your dannacion, then deserue any relefe of goddes officers, to your comfort. Sit downe and be quyet, for the same rulers & ministers are ordeyned of god to fede you wyth plentye: whych be commaunded of God to make you fyrste to set downe in order & quyetnes. Yea, and herke all ye that be godlye Rulers: there was much grasse in the place, god had prouided

prouided muche grasse for theym that loked for no carpets: geuyng all godly gouernours example to prouyde thynges necessarye for thole people that loketh for no superfluities. But alas, here in England, superfluous gorgeous building is so much prouided for ryche mens pleasures, that honest houses do decay, where as labouryng men ought to haue necessary lodging. It is a common custome with couetous landlordes, to lette their houlynge so decaye, that the fermer shalbe fayne for a smal reward or none at all to gyue vppe hys leasse, that they takynge the groundes into their own handes, may tourne al to pasture: so nowe Old Fathers, poore Wydowes, and yong childzen lie begging in the mirie stretes.

O mercifull Lorde, what a number of poore, feable, haulte

Blynde, Lame, lyckye, yea, wyth idle vacabounders, and dissembelinge kaityffes mixt among them, Beggars ie and crepe, begging in the myry streates of London and Westminster?

Nowe speakyng in the behalfe of these vile beggers, for as much as I know that ỹ vilest person vpon earth, is ỹ lively image of almigh tye God, I wyll tell the that arte a noble man, worthypfull man, an honest welthye man, especiallye if thou be Maire, Shyrife, Alderma baily, cõstable or any such officer, it is to thy greate shame afore the worlde, & to thy vtter dãnacion afore god, to se these beggig as thei ble to do in the streates. For there is neuer a one of these, but he lac-keth eyther thy charitable almes to relieue his nede, or els thy due correction to punyshe hys faute. A great sin and no les shame is it for him

him that sayeth he is a Christē mā to se Chryst lack things necessary, & to bestowe vpon the deuil superfluously. It is Christ Jesus hi selfe that in the nedy doth suffer hūger, thrist & cold: It is the deuyll hym selfe, that in the welthye fareth deintely, goeth gorgeously, & vseth superfluitie. Looke Mathewe the xxv. & there shalye se playnly that it is Chryst which lacketh sufficient in the neady: and therefore the deuyll beyng contrary to Chryst, contrariwyse hathe to much in the welthye.

You also that do prouyde that your cattel do not longe tary pinned in a folde where there is no grasse, whye do you suffer youre owne brethren in Chryst, wythout prouysyon to lye in the streates, where is muche myer? These selye soules haue ben neglected thorow oute all Englande, and especiallye in Londō and Westminster: But nowe I trust that a good ouerseer a godly Bysshop I meane, wyll se that they in these two cities, shall haue their nede relieued, and their faultes corrected, to the good ensample of al other townes & cities.

Take hede that ther be much grasse to sit vpon, there as ye commaūd the people to sit downe, that there be sufficiente houslynge and other prouisiō for the people ther as ye commaūd them to be quiet. The men satte downe about fyue thousandes in nūber. If they had not bene obedient to sitte downe, Christ wold not haue bene liberal to haue gyuen them meate.

Meate was prouided for the Cōmens of England, and readye to haue bene deliuered. But when they were bydden to sit downe in quietnes, they rose vp by rebelliō, and haue lost all the chere of that feast

feast. Yet that notwithstanding, I trust that those which sat quietly in dede, shal sone be fed with plẽtye, if they sit styll vntyll it maye conueniently be disposed. I praye GOD they maye, I truste they shal. The Euaungelist saith that the men sat, namyng neyther women nor Chyldren, how be it there was both women and Chyldren, as appeareth in the other Euangelistes. And men be here named onely, because al women and childzen did kolow the example, and obey the cõmaundemẽt of mẽ childzen of the fathers, and women of their husbandes.

Let not therefore your wyues and chyldren, when they come abrode, be so bold openly, as to say or do any thinges of them selues, but as they haue example and cõmaundement of you. Now the multitude placed in quyetnes,

Jesus

Jesus toke the loues, and when he hadde giuen thankes, he deuided them vnto his Disciples: and the Disciples vnto them that were set downe: and lykewyse of the fyshes, so much as they would

Here learne fyrste of Chryste, to take nothynge, be it neuer so lyttell, but wyth thankes rendered therefore vnto God: For of God surelye thou haste receiued it, by what messenger or meane soeuer thou came vnto it. Then secondarilye, learne at the Apostles to geue vnto other, that which the Lord hath geuen vnto the, that thou mayest truly say wyth the Apostel Paul. Quod accepi a domino, hoc tradidi uobis. That whiche I receyued of the Lorde, haue I geuen vnto you.

Beware

Beware that thou playe not the wycked seruaunt, which kept his talent hyd, and not delyuered vnto any vse, for then it shal be taken frō the, and thou shalt be cast into vtter darkenes.

Nowe, to applye this miracle vnto this present time, the kynges Magesty may learne at Chryst to take of his seruauntes, Prebendis, Benefices, Impropriacions and all maner of Offyces, that be not presently occupyed & executed of a faythful diligent officer, and after thanckes geuen vnto God therfore, to deliuer them vnto his Counsell and Nobilyty to be disposed amongest the people of hys Realme, whych be in such hunger and lacke of faythful officers, and house keepers, and godli preachers that they must nedes faint, except they be sone prouided for.

And in thys dystrybucion of ok-fices and benefyces, your Wagestye wyth your Counsell had nede to stand and beholde the dealyng of your Nobles, as Chryst dyd of his Apostles. For it is not vnlike but as there was amongest Christes Apostles, so wyll there be a-mongest euery Chrysten kynges Counsellers and Nobles, some Judas whych is to be trusted no further then he can be seene. For in syghte Judas doth as other of hys felowes do: but beyng out of syghte he solde hys Maister. And so the most coueto us of them all, wyll be afrayde to do any thynge amysse, yf you loke vpon: but if your backes be turned, then wyll coueto us Judas sell dearly that whych hys liberal maister gyueth freelye. As for example of late da-yes, the kynges Wagestye that deade is, dyd gyue a Benefyce to be appropryat vnto the Vniuersitye

sitye of Cambrydge. In liberam et puram eliemosinam: As free and pure almes. Howe be it, hys handes were so vnpure, whiche should haue delyuered it, that he receiued. vi. hundreth poundes of the Vniuersitye for it. Whether that this. vi. C. pounds were conueied to the kings behooke pryuelye for that almes, whyche by playne wrytynge was geuē frely, or els put into some Judas pouch, I would it were knowen. For nowe, by suche charitable Almes, the king is slaundered, the parish vndone, and the vniuersyty in worse case then it was afore. Pleaseth it your Magestye, wyth your honourable Counsell, for the reuerence of God, the pytye of the poore, and the godlye zele that ye haue to good learning, heare what hath bene done in your tyme.

Your Magesty hath had gyuen & receiued by Act of Parliament,

Colleges, Chauntries, & guyldes for many good considerations, and especially as appeareth in the same Act, for erectinge of grammer scholes, to the education of youthe in vertue & godlynes, to the further augmentynge of the vniuersities, and better prouision for the pooze and nedy. But now, many Grammer scholes, and muche charytable prouision for the pooze, be taken, sold, and made awaye, to the greate slaunder of you and youre lawes, to the vtter discomfort of the poze, to the greuous offence of the people, to the mooste miserable drowynge of youthe in ygnoraunce, and sooze decaye of the Vniuersities.

There was in the North countrye, amongest the rude people in knowledge (whyche be most readye to spend theyr liues and goodes, in seruinge the king at the burnyng of a Beacon) there was a Grammer schole founded, hauynge in the Vniuersitie of Cambrydge, of the same foundacion. viii. scholerships two felowshippes, euer replenished wyth the scholers of that schole, whych schole is now sold, decayed, and loste. Wo there be of lyke sort handled: But I recyte thys one-lye, because I knowe that the sale of it was once stayed of charytye, and yet afterwardes brought to passe by bribrye, as I hearde saye, and beleue it, because that it is only bribrye that customablye ouer commeth charytye.

For gods sake you that be in au-thoritye, loke vpon it.

For if ye winke at suche matters, God wyl scoule vpon you. Thinke not that I do burden you wt more than that which God by hys ordy-naunce, not wout your willes & cō-sentes, hath charged you wythal.

For by whose faute or negligence so euer it was, that thynges afore tyme haue ben vncharytably abused, lucrlye it is your charge, whiche be nowe in authorytye, to se at thys tyme all such thynges as yet remayne out of order, tightuously, spedely, and charitably redressed. And as I do perceyue, that the abuse of these thynges afore tyme, hath offended God, troubled the common wealth, and brought some men towardes shame & confusion: So do I wyshe, praye, and trust, that nowe the redresse of the same maye be to gods pleasure, the peoples cõfort, & to ỹ honor & establishment of them that be in most highe authorytye.

Heare therefore, and I wyl tel you more: There were in some townes. vi. some. viii. and some a dosyn kyne, gyuen vnto a stocke for the relefe of the poore, and sled

in

in such wyse, that the poore cotingers, which could make any prouision for fodder, had ỹ, milke for a very small hyre, & then the number of the stocke reserued, al manner of vayles besydes, bothe the hyre of the mylke, and the pryces of the yong beales, and olde fatte wares, was dispysed to the relieke of the poore, these be also soulde, taken, and made awaye. The kynge beareth the slaunder, the poore feleth the lacke, but who hath the profit of suche thynges. I canne not tell: but well I wot, and al the worlde seeth, that the Acte of Parliamente made by the kynges Magestye, and hys Lordes and Commens of the Parliamente, for the maynetenaunce of learnynge, and relieke of the poore, hathe serued some, as a most fit instrument to rob learning and to spoyl the poze.

If you that now be in authoryty do not loke vpon such thynges to redresse them, god wyl loke vpon you, to reuenge theym. Here haue I rehersed theim, that the Kynges Magestye, wyth you of hys counsell maye learne not onelye by the doctrine & examples of scripture, but also by experience in hys own land, to se and consider howe hys benefytes, put into the handes of hys nobles and officers, be disposed and vsed amongest his inferiour people.

For if landed men & officers by keping of houses, & doing of theyr duties in theyr countryes, do bestowe amonge the people, all that they haue receiued of god, by the kynges gyft, theyr fathers inheritance, or other waies: then shal god giue such encrese, y euery man shall haue inough.

As Salomon, the .xi. of the Prouerbes testifieth: Alii diuidunt propria

propria, et ditiores fiunt: alii rapiunt non sua, et semper in egestate sunt: Some dispose and gyue theyr owne, and become rycher and rycher: some doo rauine and spoyle that whiche is not theyr owne, and be euer in lacke and neede. As ye see in dayly experience, those that do theyr owne duties in executinge theyre offyces, and bestowe theyr owne goodes in keppynge good hauses, haue euer suche plentye, that all other men maruayle from whence god sendeth it. And those ydo no duties, nor kepe no hauses, but bybe in theyr offyces, and polle theyr tenaũtes, take so much and haue so lytel, that all men wonder how the deuyl they waste it.

Nothynge is more true then the Gospell: Date, et dabitur uobis: Gyue & it shal be gyuen vnto you. Gyue plentifully vnto other, and god wil gyue more plentie vnto you.

For God wyll alwayes be afore hand, in giuyng good giftes. For as appeareth in thys gospell, when the Apostles hadde giuen vnto the people so muche good meate as they desyred, then saieth the Euangelistе.

When they wer filled, Jesus sayeth to hys dysciples: Gather vp the broken meates that remaine, so that nothynge be lost. They therefore gathered and fylled. xii. baskets ful wyth the broken meates remaining of that which they had eaten.

Here they gaue but. v. loues & two fishes, & ther was giuē vnto thē. xii baskets ful of meates.

The Wyddowe of Sarepthat gaue gaue but one handfull of flowre, and a litle oile vnto Elias, and had gyuen vnto her againe so much as serued her and her sonne, al the time of the great drought. iii. Reg. xvii. Learne therfore that couetous bribry & extorcion hath neuer inough: and charytable lyberalytye euer hath plentye.

Here also maye rych men learne, when and howe to fyll theyr store houses. Surely, euen as the Apostles dyd fyll theyr baskettes, when the people haue inoughe, then by gatherynge vp that whiche elles shoulde be lost. So dyd Josephe in Egipt, suffer no corne to be lost in the yeares of plentye, but stored it vp in barnes, to releue the people wyth, in the tyme of darth: Not as couetous Carles do here in England forstall the markets, and by corne at al tymes, to begyn and encrease a dearthe.

Blessed be they that sell, to make good cheape, and cursed be they that bye, to make it deare. For Salomon sayeth. Proverbes. xi.

Qui abscondit frumenta, maledicetur in populis: benedicctio autem super caput venedencium: He that hydeth vp corne, shall be cursed amongest the people: But blessynge be vpon theyr heades, that sell.

Nowe, to teache Chrysten rulers they: dutyes, in the example of Chrystes Apostles: marke howe the Apostles dyd fyrst minister vnto the people, and than gathered vp for them selues, teaching thereby all Chrysten ministers, landelordes, officers, and rulers, fyrste to minister vnto the people, euerye one the dutye of hys owne vocacion, afore they gather of the people, rentes, tythes, or fees, by the name and authorytye of that vocacion. Qui non laborat, sayeth Paule, non manducet: He that doeth not labour, should not eate. He that doth no worke, shoulde take no wages: he that doeth no dutyes, shoulde take no fees. Alas, thys is goddes woorde, wrytten in hys wyll and Testamente, sealed wyth Chrystes bloude, and yet the customes and lawes of Englande be cleane contrarye. For it hathe bene customeably vsed, yea, and by lawes commaunded, to paye wages, tythes, and fees, although no labour, no office, no dutye be done. Yea, although he be not a labourer, a pastor or an officer in dede, but onlye by a pretenced name, vnto whome these for the most part be paied.

For he that hath the propertyes & vseth the trades of a false theife, & cruell murtherer, can neuer be a faythful officer in dede, although he be so named by hys owne flatery, in the Patrons presentacion,

in

in the Bysshoppes inducc̃on, yea and in the Kynges Patent, sealed wyth the brode Seale. I had nede to take hede how that I speake openly agaynst any thynge in anymans Patent, sealed w the kings great seale: Much more nede hadde you to take hede, how that ye do anything expressedly against goddes wyll and Testamente, sealed wyth Chrystes precious bloude. It is expressedly agaynste Goddes Testamente, to clothe a Wolfe in a Lambes skynne: to call a theefe, an officer, and a cruell murtherer a charytable pastoure: to call euyll by the name of good: and good by the name of the euyll. Esaye. v. Ve qui dicitis malum bonum. Woo be to you that call euyl good. To you I say, which not only by sayinges but also in wrytynges, do name & call theiues, murtherers, & wolfes that be euyll, by the names of ofsycers

Lib. Leaf

ficers, paſtors, and lambes, whiche be good. I do not onlye meane Perſons, Prebendaryes, and other benefiſed men, but alſo all manner officers, whiche haue wages, fees, or liuinges, becauſe you geue them ſuch names, and not for that they do ſuch dutyes.

Theſe be al Wolfs, and the names and titles that you gyue them, be nothynge els but ſhepe ſkynnes.

Some ſaye, they wyll take better heede hereafter, but that whiche is nowe paſt, can not nowe be called backe, and amended. Yea, and it were great pytye, ſeynge that they haue payed the fyrſt fruites vnto the Kinges Mageſty, and no ſmal reward vnto other men, perchaūce bought theyr offyces dearelye, now to put them out of thoſe lyuynges, wyth the loſſe of all thoſe charges whiche they haue beſtowed in rewardes, as other wayes, to gette ſuch

such lyuynges.

Wo, wo wo vnto you hypocrytes that stumble at a strawe, and leape ouer a blocke, that strayne out a gnat, and swalowe vp a camell, that pytye moze the losse of mens bzybzye, whiche was geuen to corrupt some men, then the treading vnder fote of Chzistes bloud, whiche was shead, to saue all men, that dooe imagin it pytye to dzyue the theues, murtherers and wolfes frō amongest ỹ lambs of God, redemed w Chzists pzecious blud, & cōmitted vnto your gouernaunce and keppynge.

As God shal helpe me, I speake wyth feare, pytye, and reuerence: if you do not rather pulle the shepes skinnes ouer the wolfes eares, and hang theyr carcases vpon the pales, then suffer theym to contynewe styll, God wyll plucke you downe wyth some sodein mischieke, rather

rather then maintetne or ſuffer you in ſo hygh authorytye, to vſe ſuch vncharitable, vngodly, and cruell pytye. You knowe that ſome of thē haue bought theyr benefyces, haue bought theyr offyces, than muſt ye nedes know, that eyther Chriſt is a lyer, or els that they be entered in as theues, to ſpoyle, murther, and to deſtroye.

If you ſuffer theues, murtherers and wolfes to take theyr pleſures amongeſt Goddes lambes, I tell you playne, God wyll not longe ſuffer you to be ỹ hedſhepherds, & gouernours & feders of hys lābes.

And take hede you people that on the otherſide ye runne not into an vntollerable ſtobernes, denyng your rētes, your tithes, or other duties: for ỹ ſcripture forbyddeth you vtterly, to deny or withdrawe any thīg frō thē: thou art cōmaūded if he contēd to take thy cloke to geue

hym

hym also thy cote. What soeuer is asked, rather gyue more, than by denyinge of that, not to shewe thy selfe to be an innocent shepe that gyueth hys fleese, but a noysome Goat, that strîketh with the horne. You are alwayes bounden to geue the flese. It is the magistrates duties, to consider and note, whether they be theues or shepherds, dogs or woulfes, that taketh the fleese. Medle not wyth other mennes duties, for if ye do, surely ye shal finde no remedye, but prouoke vncolourable vengeaunce.

Nowe to tourne to oure particuler purpose, lette all theyn that do receiue offices, landes, power, or authority krome God, by the kynges gyfte, or by other meanes, Firste bestowe & dispose the dutyes of those thynges faithfullye amongest the people, afore they gather vp to theim selues the reuenues &

com-

commodities of the same from the people. And then when as no man can come to meat, but by doyng of labour, nor none to receyuynge of fees, but by doing of duties, surely euery man shal haue as much as he deserueth, & no man shall lacke that which he needeth.

For he, that by doing of greate duties, deserueth the moste, by atteininge the fees and rewardes due for the same duryes, shall haue the best. And he ỹ is in nede, hauinge no trust to get any thyng by idlenesse, crafte, or flattery, shalbe compelled to vse that labour & honest exercise, whyche shall relyeue hys nede sufficiẽtly. Yea, by thys mean no man shall spende hys tyme in idlenesse, nor vse any labour or dyligence, wythout due recompence. For nede shall dryue all men from slouthfull idlenesse, vnto labour & diligẽce: and where as no laboure nor dylygence lacketh hys iust re-warde, there euery labouring and diligent man, shal haue sufficient plenty: So ye see how thys doeth consequently ensue, that euery mā shal haue sufficient inough & plen tye, wher as men do first dispose, minister, & giue accordyng to theyr duties, & afterwardes receiue kepe & saue that which God doth sende as a rewarde, encreased & augmented, for doing of theyr duties.

So dyd the Apostles, after the faythful diligent disposyng of the .v. loues and .ii. fyshes receiue and keepe theyr rewarde wonderfully augmēted, to replenish and fyl .xii. baskets. So God graunt, that all officers in Englād may wyth such faithful diligence do theyr duties ỹ it may please God to gyue to all the people sufficient inough, & vnto euery minister, the basket of his honest desire, heaped vp bi the bry

The men therfore seynge what a signe Jesus had done, sayd that this is ỹ Prophet, whiche cometh into the worlde. This is euen he whom Moises, the law, & the prophetes do teache, to be the fully & only sufficient sauiour of ỹ world. Moses saying, in ỹ.xviii. of Deut. A Prophet of thy nacion & of thy brethren, lyke vnto me, shall the Lorde thy God rayse vp vnto the, hym shalt thou heare. The lawe, as a tutour, leadeth & bryngeth al men to thys sauyour, to receyue of hym that perfection, which the law it selfe lacketh. The Prophetes dyd tel long afore of this sauiour which is now comen in our tyme, after theyr dayes. Thys was the peoples confession of Chryst, after that they were by so great a miracle, so plentyfully eyed. Chriſte ofte afore had wrought wõderfull miracles, disputed learnedly, & preached ched playnely: but by al those meanes did he not so muche perswade the people, and win theyr heartes, as by thys one miracle, in feeding & cherysshinge the people. Yea, and whosoeuer listeth to mark throwe out all Englande, he shall se that a meane learned person, keping an house in hys parysshe, and beyng of godly conuersacion, shal perswade & teach mo of hys parisshens with communicacion at one meale, than the best learned doctor of Diuinitie keepynge no house can perswade or teache in hys parish by preachyng a dosen solemne sermons.

Nota of fac

Lyke wyse the gentle man that kepeth a good house in his cõtrey shalbe in better credit with ỹ people for hys liberalitye: then the best orator or lawier in England, for all hys eloquence. I do not prayse those men whych bybe and pol al the yeare to kepe riot in theyr houses

les for a fortnyght, a moneth, or a quarter of a yeare: But those I se beloued, trusted & obeyed, that accordynge to theyr habilitie, keepe good houses continually.

And the chiefe cause why the commens doo not loue, trust, nor obey the gentlemē & officers, is, because the gentlemen and officers buylde many fayre houses, and kepe fewe good houses, haue plentye of eloquence to tell fayre tales, but vse lytell faythfull dylygence in doyng of theyr duties. Wherefore, sende forth and place in euerye countrye godly preachers, wel disposed persons, and faithful diligent officers of all sortes. Yea, but where shuld we now fynd liuyngs for al those?

Forsoth I do tel you: Out and away with the wily foxes, the false flatteryng theues, & the rauenyng wolfes, and than se how many loues, how many offices, prebendes, and benefices ye finde boyde, howe many you haue amongest your sel-ues that youre boye carpeth, that your chapleynes, your seruaunts, and your houshold officers haue, & let all these be brought forth: and although at the fyrste syghte they shal seme to litle, and fewe to serue so greate a Realme with so manye shyres, beyng all runne nowe oute of ciuil order into rude wilderues, Yet, after equal diuidyng & fayth-full diligent ministring of those lo-ues and fyshes, of these prebends, personages, and all kynd of offices amongest the people, God of hys goodnesse shall geue suche increase vnto the people, hauynge therebye sufficiente plenty of Christes holy worde of good ciuil order, & of charitable relefe, that there shal be remaynyng so much tithes, offrynge, rentes, fees, & rewards, as wyl fyll the .xii. baskets of the Apostles, I mean meane the barnes, the houses, and purses of all fayethfull diligente ministers and officers. Then shall thys one acte perswade and allure the hertes of al Englysh men, more then all that euer was done afore: For when they shall see, that by thys kyng and thys Counsell, the wilye fore of superstition is vtterlye banysshed, the false theke of flatery apprehended and taken, and the cruel wolfe of couetousenesse slain and hanged vp by the heeles, so that the preachers, the persons, the officers, and all manner of pastores restored to theyr places, doo feede, cherysh, and kepe theyr flockes whiche were afore pylled, spoiled and deuoured: then shall they of hertye courage, with one minde, and one voice confesse and acknowledge, that thys is a kyng sent frō God, indued wyth the wysdome of Salomon, and the fayethfull diligent

A Sermon preached

gent stoutnesse of Dauyd hys father, nowe guyded by godly counsel to bryng out of mysery, and pro sper in welth vs the people of thys hys Real pe.

Dixit Dominus.
The Lorde hathe
spoken it.

God graunt you grace to do it, with thanks & prayse to hym for euer.

¶ Imprinted at London by John Day dwellinge ouer Aldersgate, beneth saint Martyns. And are to be sold at his shop by the litle conduit in Cheapeside at the sygne of the Resurrection.

Cum priuilegio ad imprimendum solum. Per septennium.